1. History of the Church:

The first Trinity Church in Moore, commonly known as Sutherland Church, was built between Courtright and Mooretown on land donated by Thomas Sutherland. The church was erected in 1842 after a delay of 7 years, due to the 1837 rebellion. The rotting of the oak log foundation of this church in the early 1860's necessitated the building of a new church. Mooretown was chosen as the site for this new church. Mrs. James Baby donated the land on the corner of Pulteney and Napoleon streets and she laid the cornerstone on May 25, 1863. In 1918, the tall steeple of this church was hit with lightning, causing the church to burn to the ground.

The Trinity church that is now Trinity St. Clair Chapel was built in 1919 on the site of the preceding church. The windows in this building were saved from the 1863 church. In the early 1980's the declining size of the congregation led to the closing of Trinity Anglican Church. It was subsequently used as an artist's studio. In October of 1998 the church was moved to its present location. Following the renovations, it was re-named Trinity St. Clair Chapel. A service for the blessing of the chapel was held on July 30, 2000.

Many of the furnishings, including the altar (communion table), altar rail, chairs in the altar area and one of the lecterns are from Trinity Church. The pews were donated by Christ Church, Ouvry.

The pulpit was donated by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Mooretown. The other lectern was donated by Sombra Anglican Church.
